

Aleut Northwest Services Awarded Contract in New Zealand/Antarctica

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Anchorage, Alaska, (October 27, 2008) – Aleut Northwest Services (www.aleutnws.com) was recently direct awarded a $4M contract for the operation of the Standard Base Supply System (SBSS) at Christchurch, New Zealand, with a forward supply point in McMurdo Station, Antarctica, in support of the 109th Air Wing, NY Air National Guard, Operation Deep Freeze and the United States Antarctic Program.

Aleut Northwest Services (ANWS) will provide all personnel, equipment, tools and materials, supervision, and other items and services necessary to support authorized customers through the systems and processes of the USAF Standard Base Supply System (SBSS), manage National Science Foundation owned aviation assets and U.S. Air Force owned assets, in Christchurch, New Zealand, and McMurdo Station, Antarctica.

ANWS's employees will operate an Air National Guard Satellite Category III supply account and a limited equipment account in Christchurch, New Zealand. They will also operate a seasonal forward supply point and a seasonally transferred readiness spares kit in McMurdo Station, Antarctica during the annual "Operation Deep Freeze". The supply accounts and aviation asset inventories will be a means of aviation system support to the LC-130 aircraft of the 109 Airlift Wing, New York Air National Guard.
